

Healthcare Reporting and Consulting

BridgeIT for eClinicalWorks was born when an FQHC in New York needed data for a grant. A few of their data fields in their EMR were mapped to meet the needs of the grant. When the finance department was struggling to access additional data that they needed, those fields were mapped. Recognizing that this was not the end of the process, Heckman Consulting LLC undertook to map as many reportable data fields in the eClinicalWorks system as possible.

All of the clinically relevant and all of the financial data fields in the eClinicalWorks system are mapped and available in a tool that uses Microsoft Office technology. Using tools that do not require advanced training gives users an intuitive view of their data and endless possible outputs.

Reports are quickly generated and many questions answered without even running a report. Users can look at their raw data and learn what is happening in the system with a few filters.

Many sites have used BridgeIT to look for data entry issues and have found missed revenue opportunities that paid for the system in the first month it was installed.
